Basic Strategy

Spin & Go strategy will be easier to pick up if you have some experience playing short-handed, either in 1 cash games or in the late stages of tournaments. Due to the short levels and players starting with as few 1 as 25 big blinds (BBs), having a concrete strategy will help you play optimally when a lot of your opponents 1 may just be trying Spin & Go's out for the first time.

By following some of the key points below, you 1 should be able to develop an edge over your opponents despite the shallow starting stacks.

Building a Stack Early

A common mistake 1 inexperienced players make in this format is waiting for a good hand and not taking the initiative in the first 1 few levels. Remember, you only have 25BBs and the blinds are increasing at turbos speeds; if you wait too long 1 for a good hand you might only have a few big blinds remaining in your stack when it comes. This 1 doesn't mean you should be opening 100% of your range, but controlled aggression is definitely optimal, especially from the button 1 and small blind.

It's important that you try and find out as much information as possible during the early stages, such 1 as:

Are players not defending their blinds properly?

Are all of your button raises getting through?

Are your opponents playing too passively?

Do your

1 opponents seem like weaker opposition?

Once you have a feel for your opponents, you'll be able to gauge how aggressive you 1 can be and adjust your opening/shoving ranges around that.

Calling Becomes Shoving (from the Small Blind)

Due to the shallow stacks, calling 1 an open raise becomes a lot less profitable in this format. You'll be playing 25BBs effective poker in the first 1 level and even then, you should only really have a calling range from the big blind.

The problem with calling raises 1 out of the small blind is that you'll be out of position every time and you'll struggle to realize the 1 full equity of your hand when post-flop. Therefore, a lot more hands are added to your 3-bet jamming range, which 1 is going to be so much more profitable than calling.

The table below shows a typical 3-bet jamming range from the 1 small blind in the early stages when stacks are around 20BBs deep.

This specific range can be adjusted depending on the opponent opening from the button. If the player 1 has been relatively tight, or extremely aggressive, you can adjust the range accordingly.

In addition, this range can also be applied 1 to the big blind, but considering you have already invested 1BB into the pot, the majority of the time you'll 1 be getting the right price to call with most of your range, even off a short stack.

Raise-Sizing

Preserving your stack at 1 all times is something that will go a long way in Spin & Go's. So, When opening from the button 1 a minimum raise ('min-raise') is often ideal, as you don't have anything invested in the pot, so risking the least 1 amount of your stack is going to be much more profitable.

As for opening from the small blind, considering you already 1 have half a big blind invested you have more incentive to fight for the pot and try to take down 1 the hand. Therefore, upping your sizing to around 2.5x BBs is fine from this position as you're increasing fold equity 1 and giving the big blind less incentive to call.

A

common mistake people make from the small blind is min-raising, as 1 you give your opponent a great price to call and they then have the advantage of position. Also, the shorter 1 your stack, the more you'll start to open-shove from the small blind and raise-sizing won't be an issue.

Button and Small 1 Blind – Jamming Ranges

After the first few levels of a Spin & Go, more often than not you'll find yourself 1 playing a 'push or fold' strategy with fewer than 11 BBs. You'll no longer have the stack to play post-flop 1 poker and 3-bet/folding becomes a less favorable option as well.

If you're struggling to build a +EV jamming range from the 1 button or small blind, the following charts will give you an idea of what your range should look like.

Note that 1 as your stack becomes even shorter you can add a few more hands into your jamming range, but using this 1 table is a good way to build your range and gain some experience by using a set strategy.

As you can see, your small blind jamming range becomes a lot wider as you only have to 1 get one player to fold. Similar to the button, the shorter you are the wider you can open-jam. Additionally, if 1 the player in the big blind seems like an extremely tight player, you can widen your jamming range as they 1 won't be calling with the correct range.

Once you've started getting a feel for your opponents, you can adjust your ranges 1 accordingly and start to build a strategy of your own.
